

NELLA LAST IN THE 1950S: THE FURTHER DIARIES OF HOUSEWIFE, 49

'I can never understand how the scribbles of such an ordinary person ... can possibly have value.' So wrote Nella Last in her diary on 2 September 1949. Sixty years on, tens of thousands of people have read and enjoyed the first two volumes of her uniquely detailed and moving diaries, written during World War II and its aftermath as part of the Mass Observation...

Reader's Opinions

The last of the Nella Lasts to date. Woe is me, I've read them all, but as these are true-life diaries they repay re-reading. Nella is enjoyable as always, with her observations of human nature, the changes in the world that surrounds her, etc. Things are sadder for her as she struggles to adjust to postwar life--a problem shared by...

The third (and possibly final?) volume of extracts from Nella's millions of words written over more than thirty years. I loved Nella from her first volume. This one certainly has less going on than the wartime diaries but it's still quite fascinating and thought-provoking. Nella is intelligent, observant, and critical,...
