Reader's Opinions

This series is just really not that great for me. This was actually a little more interesting, since I like Deadman (Blackest Night or Darkest Day, when he comes back is where I mostly have experience with this character and I liked Boston Brand a lot). The beginning stories didn't really have anything to do with the previous volumes;...

In this latest volume of the no-longer coded New 52 Flash, Barry Allen goes through his paces in a series of tales that are very Bronze-Ageish. It starts with Flash Annual #2, which gives us the first meeting of Flash and Hal Jordan, and ends in a three part murder mystery that has Cary Bates stamped all over it. Nothing really moves...
